

XTENTEC unites T1A and Flex IT under a new brand to simplify circular technology across Europe

The new identity brings together secure IT collection, certified refurbishment and a European distribution network serving approximately 13,000 resellers, marking the next step towards an integrated circular IT business.

Leiden, Copenhagen and Paris, 5 October 2026 - Flex IT and T1A today introduce XTENTEC, the shared name under which the two companies will unite around a common ambition: extending the life of technology.

XTENTEC will replace the Flex IT and T1A brands as the businesses progressively integrate into one company. During this transition, both existing brands will remain visible and active in the market.

The combination brings together T1A's expertise in corporate IT collection, secure data erasure and certified refurbishment with Flex IT's refurbishment capabilities and European distribution network of approximately 13,000 resellers.

The group with approximately €150 million in revenue, is backed by the Eurazeo Planetary Boundaries Fund (EPBF) as majority shareholder and Dansk Vækstkapital as a minority investor.

A more connected service for customers

The phased brand transition will give customers time to become familiar with XTENTEC while continuing to recognise the businesses and teams they already know. As integration progresses, customers will be using one partner to retire equipment securely and source certified refurbished technology.

"XTENTEC gives us one identity and one clear purpose: extending the life of technology," said Angelo Bul, Chief Executive Officer of the group. "By combining our expertise in IT collection, secure refurbishment and distribution, we can make circular technology simpler for customers and operate it at greater scale."

A stronger foundation for long term growth

The strategy builds on the Eurazeo Planetary Boundaries Fund's (EPBF) ambition to scale circular economy solutions. It also supports the group's previously announced intention to pursue further acquisitions to expand its geographical presence and service portfolio.

Bringing the businesses together is intended to improve operational efficiency and create a stronger foundation for investment and further European growth.

XTENTEC's new identity expresses the purpose behind that strategy: extending the life of technology through secure collection, refurbishment and reuse, helping reduce electronic waste and the loss of valuable materials.

About XTENTEC

XTENTEC brings together the people and expertise of Flex IT and T1A, united by a simple belief: technology should not be limited to one life. We challenge the habit of replacing technology before its potential is realised. Our vision is a world where circular technology is the everyday choice. With decades of experience and the determination to change how our industry thinks and acts, we help businesses stretch the possibilities of their current- and future technology. www.XTENTEC.com
